The Birds by Daphne du Maurier. Page 1. The Birds Daphne du Maurier. On December the third, the wind changed overnight, and it was winter. Until then the autumn had been mellow, soft. The leaves had lingered on the trees, golden-red, and the hedgerows were still green. The earth was rich where the plow had turned it.

They were all small birds, none of any size; there must have been fifty of them lying there upon the floor. There were robins, finches, sparrows, blue tits, larks and bramblings, birds that by nature's law kept to their own flock and their own territory, and now, joining one with another in their urge for battle, had destroyed themselves against the bedroom walls, or in the strife had been destroyed by him.

This is an excellent audiobook contains two short stories by Daphne du Maurier. They are both great stories. "The Birds" is the basis for the Hitchcock movie of the same name. I had never heard of "Don't Look Now". If anything I liked it more than "The Birds". These are the first two works by Daphne du Maurier that I have read.
